About the Author

Marina Fedotova was born in Moscow City, Russia, where she is still living and working today as a professional illustrator. She describes her art as “full of kindness and witty humor.” Marina, who was classically trained as a watercolorist, loves adding minute details such as the knit on a woolen scarf or a fluttering butterfly overhead. She is inspired by the puppeteers who make their own dolls and perform locally to her. She, like them, loves to bring her creations to life.

It does not come close 10 Tiny Puppies

By Lily M.

Purchased this book as we fell in love with 10 Tiny Puppies which was also illustrated by Maria Fedotova. We read the puppies book at bedtime a lot, and the illustrations are cute and beautiful. However, this one remained on the shelf like the elf even through Christmas. It comes with cardboard puzzle pieces so perhaps we'll bring this out again this Christmas to see if there's any interest with our toddler who will be close to 4 years old then.

Great Book!

By Joanne C Wheeler

I purchased this book because a friend's little boy absolutely fell in love with this book at school. I purchased this book for small children in my family and they absolutely love this book. I would highly recommend it for young children. You and your child start to read it 12 days before Christmas and each day pertains to a different elf until all 12 elves are by the Christmas Tree for Christmas.

very cute book

By M. Thompson

I actually already have this book, and when my mother-in-law saw it, she wanted one for her house. I ordered it for her, and it arrived very quickly. My 6-year-old grand daughter loves hiding these elves around the house for me to find. She's very good at using the clues in the book to hide them in places that are fitting for each elf.
